Qualifying For Registration

To qualify for registration as a gaming director, an applicant must be of good character and have suitable training and experience. The criteria of good character and training or experience are applied to the principal responsibilities and the impact on the integrity of gaming. SLGA will consider a number of factors in order to determine an applicant's suitability to be a gaming director, such as the existence of a criminal history, disclosure of information, and relevant training, education and/or experience.

The criteria are applied more rigorously to gaming director's as they directly impact the integrity of gaming and set the standard for behaviour and management practices.

Suitability Factors

Criminal History

In order to prove good character, an applicant must have demonstrated orderly and lawful conduct. Such conduct should not include convictions of a serious criminal offence; substantial misrepresentation of material fact related to bribery, fraud, theft, filing of false claims (including the application for registration); financial instability; or past or present behaviour which gives cause to negatively impact an assessment of an applicant's integrity and good character.

The assessment of an applicant's criminal history is one of a number of critical factors in determining suitability. A criminal history is not the same as a criminal record. A criminal history includes criminal investigations, interviews, detentions and arrests that may or may not have resulted in a conviction. Even if a person was found not guilty or if their charges were dismissed or stayed, the charges still form part of an individual's criminal history. A criminal history also includes any charges that were dealt with through an Alternative Measures Program or resulted in a suspended sentence, conditional or absolute discharge. A criminal history by itself does not disqualify an applicant from being registered. If an applicant has a criminal history, SLGA will consider the nature of the charge(s) or conviction(s), circumstances of the offences, sentences imposed by the court, length of time since the last offence and evidence of rehabilitation or treatment.

SLGA may not process an application if an applicant has an outstanding warrant or charge that could potentially result in a denial of a registration. Warrants or charges may need to be cleared (fully resolved through the courts) before SLGA will make a determination of suitability. SLGA may also initiate an investigation or personal interview to determine suitability following the resolution in court.

Suitable Training or Experience

A gaming director has responsibility for the stewardship of public money, decision-making and integrity in an industry that is high risk. Applicants for a gaming director registration must demonstrate through training, education and/or experience that they have the capacity to provide leadership, to contribute to sound decision-making at the highest level and to contribute effectively in the public interest.

Failure to Disclose

Failing to disclose reflects negatively on a person's character, as it brings into question his/her honesty. SLGA may deny or cancel a registration if a person fails to disclose information relevant to the application or registration.

SLGA will conduct reviews of all registered gaming directors as required. The review may include a new criminal record check. Therefore, it is important for gaming directors to disclose any changes to their initial application that may impact their registration as soon as the changes occur. Although the circumstances of a new charge may not affect a gaming director's suitability, failure to disclose the information would be considered a breach of the terms and conditions and the gaming director could be subject to disciplinary action including, but not limited to, suspension or cancellation of the registration.

Other Considerations

SLGA will also consider if an applicant or gaming director has displayed conduct that suggests a lack of good character such as providing false or misleading information or has a history of problem gambling, alcohol or drug abuse.
